

New citizens group forms to promote Del Pointe New citizens group forms to promote Del Pointe

Recently in two separate meetings in Delaware, more than 125 residents gathered to support the Del Pointe Resort & Racino proposal in Millsboro.

Residents have formed DelPointeNOW, a grassroots group that wants to promote the pro-proposal currently being aired in the state Legislature.

All supporters agree that the nearly 6,000 new jobs, tens of millions in tax revenue to the state and a destination resort in Sussex County are needed in today's economy. Del PointeNOW intends to offer independent support of Del Pointe Resort & Racino so that all can become familiar with the positive results that it will bring to Sussex County and to this great state.

Loretta Mahan, from Rehoboth Beach, has agreed to lead DelPointeNOW. "Having lived in Rehoboth Beach for the last six years and having had the opportunity to have been part of the building boom, it has been even harder to watch as Sussex County loses its economic momentum.

"Jobs are at an all-time low here, and there just doesn't seem to be an end in sight. Del Pointe changes all of that. DelPointe has become the new hope for an otherwise beleaguered county. Del Pointe would solidify Sussex County by establishing a national vacation experience. That experience would also provide the jobs, hope and security that is so needed in these times. Del Pointe is the beginning of a better Sussex County and a better Delaware," said Mahan.
